Perhaps our big oil companies could tell us what the British put in their engines to get such horsepower and make them go so fast. The composition of their fuel is a mystery to American engine builders.

This year the Italians, British and French will compete in the Schneider cup race for the world's speed records. Uncle Sam, who invented the airplane, will be absent. What's the matter with us? Are we getting too old, fat and rich?

THE IMPORTANT NEWS today that will be important 1,000 years hence, is the news of a really fast railroad train, designed by Professor Wiesinger, in Switzerland.

Its coaches, made of light aluminum, will weigh only three tons each, and be driven by airplane propellers, will travel 223 miles an hour.

Such a train would take passengers from New York to San Francisco in 14 hours. You will get such trains in the United States eventually.

THE GERMANS yesterday, with 60,000 looking on, launched their first so-called "pocket" cruiser, a fighting ship with which Germans demonstrate their superior engineering and military intelligence.

It is a small vessel, much smaller than some that France and the United States are building, but far superior in every way. A great number of small compartments enable the new cruiser, named "Deutschland," to resist the discharge of several torpedoes or mines. Six 11-inch guns, mounted in armored triple turrets, have a range of 17 miles. This German ship could destroy every existing 10,000-ton cruiser, including United States and French cruisers, with no danger to herself.

With Diesel engines, the new German fighting unit, more brilliantly designed than any other in the world, has a cruising range of 10,000 miles.

We have the money, and France won the victory, but Germany seems to have the brains, in this case, most important of all.

NICHOLAS M. SCHENCK, president of Loew's Incorporated, which operates hundreds of theaters here and abroad, and of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, one of the two greatest producing companies, announces a policy that deserves the strongest public approval.

Mr. Schenck will not permit either of the companies to exhibit or make any films inspired by advertising interests. He says: 'Screened advertising is a menace to the motion picture industry and should be barred by all first-class theaters."

Good advertising is admirable but disguised advertising or open advertising on the screen is indefensible.

STATE OFFICE COMMISSION HIT IN REPORT

"Business Judgment" Forgotten in $6,000,000 Project, Senators Say.

FIND SIZE INADEQUATE

"Monument" Rather Than Practical Building Planned, Is Committee Finding.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 20—Though finding "no indication whatsoever of dishonesty or misappropriation of funds by the state office building commission in erection of the new $6,000,000 state office building," the Ohio senate special investigating committee reported to the senate today that ordinary precautions and business judgment have been forgotten in the enterprise.

Holding that the building commission, if original plans are carried out, will have exceeded the appropriations by $850,000, the committee concluded that the new building will not be large enough to met present demands, although intended to furnish adequate space until 1940, and that at least $600,000 additional funds will be required to complete the structure with many monumental features eliminated.

Needless Expense Charged

By implication, the commission is censured for constructing a monumental building, the report asserting that the commission "decided that the building should be monumental as the first consideration and that utility and economy should be secondary." Selection of George marble as the facing stone, the committee said, "was the first large item of unnecessary expense that led to the present serious shortage of funds."

The decision to erect a monumental building, the report declared, added about $1,000,000 to the cost of the structure according to

BODY OF U. S. MARINE GENERAL RECOVERED

Robert H. Dunlap, One Other Dead in French Landslide; Woman Rescued.

By The Associated Press

TOURS, France, May 20—Police and volunteers directed by army engineers today recovered the body of General Robert T. Dunlap, U.S.M.C., from the ruins of a barn adjoining the Chateau of Cinqmars, where he was buried under a landslide yesterday.

They also brought out the body of Denis Briant, a farmer on the estate, and rescued Mme. Briant, alive but badly injured.

Mme. Briant's leg was amputated by a surgeon who had remained at the place all night in the hope that all three might still be living when the debris was cleared away. She is in critical condition.

The woman had taken refuge in a stone age cave over which the barn was built. There was air there and when the rescuers heard her cries early this morning they managed to run in a tube through which they fed her some milk.

It appeared that the general and Briant had been crushed to death as they rushed into the barn to save the woman when the landslide came. A huge rock wedged between two walls probably saved her life, but another wall fell in upon her, crushing her leg.

Mrs. Dunlap, who witnessed the tragedy, was in a state of collapse at the neighboring home in which she spent the night. She was so distraught that officials hesitated to communicate her husband's death.

VIEWS DIFFER ON TAX PLAN

OPPOSED BY FORMER

Arguments Outgrowth of Efforts To Provide More Revenue for State.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 20—The Ohio chamber of commerce and the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants were pitted against each other today on the matter of a state income tax.

The chamber of commerce is unqualifiedly opposed to an income tax as a means of solving the state's revenue problems and the merchants' organization has gone on record in favor of that plan.

The conflicting views lingered in the minds of members of the house and senate tax committees today as they entered upon another day of public hearings on a taxation program which is designed to replace revenue losses incurred by adoption of the classification amendment.

"Amazed" at Proposal

George B. Chandler, executive secretary of the Ohio chamber told the committees last night that he was "amazed" the night before when he heard George V. Sheridan, director of the council of merchants, propose an individual income tax and a corporation income tax, if necessary.

Chandler said that if the New York plan of imposing income taxes is followed the state will

FORMER SENATOR BENDER INDICTED

Cleveland Political Leader Faces Perjury, Embezzlement Charges.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., May 20—George H. Bender, prominent in Cleveland and Ohio politics, was indicted by the grand jury here today no charges of perjury and embezzlement.

Bender is manager of the Cleveland municipal stadium and formerly was a state senator.

The indictment charged Bender committed perjury in a report he made to the secretary of state concerning disposition of funds of the Constitutional Law Enforcement League of Ohio, which he organized in 1927 to defeat the Marshall justice of the peace bill. One count of the indictment charged him with embezzlement of $22,750 of the league's funds.

When the grand jury investigation began several days ago, Bender said, "I have been guilty of no wrong-doing." He refused to make additional comment.

REMANDS SHOP CASE TO COURT AT BUCYRUS

Federal Judge Sustains Motion Filed by Solicitor Schaber.

CITY ASKS INJUNCTION

By International News Service

CLEVELAND, May 20—Order sustaining the motion of the city of Bucyrus which asked that its suit against the New York Central railroad be remanded to the Crawford county common pleas court was on file in federal district court here today.

The motion, filed by Bucyrus City Solicitor Charles F. Schaber, was sustained by Federal Judge Paul Jones after a short deliberation.

The suit, originally filed in Crawford county, asks an injunction against the proposed action of the railroad to remove its Bucyrus shops to Collinwood, near Cleveland. The city charged that the action was in violation with a contract held by Bucyrus with the railroad.

County Court Reversed

Removal of the suit to the federal court at Cleveland was granted by the Crawford court on a motion of the defendant, which alleged the suit could only be legally tried in a federal court.

In remanding the suit to Crawford county, Judge Jones ruled that the case should be tried in the state court inasmuch as there was no cause to show why the case should be heard by the federal court.

City Given Injunction

A temporary restraining order was granted the city when the railroad announced its intention of moving the heavy repair shops to Cleveland. In filing the action, Bucyrus attorneys held that a contract with the railroad provided a $50,000 forfeiture if the shops ever were moved. The shop buildings and equipment also were to become the property of the city.

Efforts to settle the matter failed and the Bucyrus council backed by civic groups decided to start court action. The railroad has held that the Bucyrus shops should be moved to Collinwood for economic reasons.

WELFARE SOCIETY NEWEST FUND GROUP

City Relief Body Proves Worth in First Year of Operation.

The following is one of a series of articles published by The Star to inform it readers of the activities of Community Fund agencies, who are asking a total of $73,397 to finance their work for the next 12 months. This story deals with activities of the Family Welfare society, principal welfare unit of the fund.

* * *

The Family Welfare society, the youngest of all Community Fund agencies, meets a peculiar variety of welfare needs in Marion. Created early last December to meet an emergency welfare problem in the city, the society, through its trained workers, has interviewed 5,308 persons and administered help in an efficient and systemitized manner.

Because this agency is young, its functions are little understood in Marion. Many persons have the idea that the distribution of food and clothing are the prime functions of the society. True, Mrs. Jane Alexander explains, the society does handle a lion's share of the charity work done by the fund since last December. But the greatest aim of the society is to help persons themselves. This is accomplished in a number of ways.

Aids in Many Ways

When a family is in need, food and clothing necessarily must precede any constructive management work. The wife and mother, often unable to buy and prepare food wisely, is shown how to make her grocery money go farther. The wage earner, often out of work because of physical handicaps, is taken to the dispensary at City hospital where through another Community Fund agency, the clinic, he is given treatment that will enable him to resume work.

Home planning, the importance of providing for the future by laying away money, canning fruit, or any number of little tricks in home management are stressed.

The society guided other philanthropic agencies in the distribution

SURRENDERS TO FACE SWINDLING CHARGE

England To Ask Extradition of "Jake the Barber" for British Fraud.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 20—John Factor, alias "Jake the Barber," sought for an alleged $5,000,000 swindle in England, surrendered to government authorities today and was held for arraignment before a United States commissioner.

The one time cut-rate barber, accused of changing his trade to that of the swindler and stock manipulator, bilking thousands of English investors, said to include the Prince of Wales, walked into the federal building with his attorney.

Complaints against him were signed by Godfrey Haggard, British consul here, who will seek his extradition to London for trial. The Broad Street Press, Ltd., is the principal complainant.

As he awaited arraignment, Factor said:

"I have no detailed statement to make at this time, except to say that all that I have read about myself in the last few days is absolutely false."

3-YEAR-OLD LAD IS VICTIM

ACCIDENT ON N. MAIN ST.

Driver Arrested, Then Released; Accidental Death Verdict.

Junior Dale Postell, 3, was instantly killed when he was run over by a loaded stone truck yesterday at 6:15 p. m. at north Main and Fairview streets.

Hoy Welch, 29, of 128 north Seffner avenue, driver of the truck belonging to Clyde Nicodemus of 315 Hane avenue was arrested and released shortly afterward.

A verdict of accidental death was returned this afternoon by Dr. Kenneth D. Smith, county coroner, following an investigation in which police, John Wiedemann, police prosecutor, and Russell M. Wilhelm, prosecuting attorney, took part.

Was With Cousin

The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Postell of Bryant street. He was following his cousin, Gladys Postell, 11, and ran across the street after she had warned him to go home. Welch said the lad ran from the east side of the street. The driver swerved the truck to the right to avoid hitting him, but the right corner of the body struck him and the rear left dual wheel ran over his head and shoulders.

The boy had gone to a north Main street grocery with his cousin, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Postell of 968 Bryant street. The girl crossed Main street to visit with her aunt, Mrs. Martha Abbott, and told the boy to go home. Instead, he waited until she was across the street, and started to follow her.

Driver Stops

The driver of a sedan following the stone truck, said that the truck was not going more than 20 miles an hour at the time of the accident and that Welch stopped immediately.

Junior Dale was born Feb. 2, 1928, in Marion to Frank and Hazel Demunn Postell, both of this city. He was a member of the cradle roll department of Emmanuel Baptist church.

Private funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. at the W. C. Boyd funeral home on south Main street. Rev. S. F. Porter, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist church will be in charge. Burial will be made in Marion cemetery.

HOUSE AT RICHWOOD DESTROYED BY FIRE

Former Beauty Winner Freed in Murder Trial

By The Associated Press

NICE, France, May 20—Charlotte Nash Nixon-Nirdlinger was acquitted today on a charge of manslaughter in the shooting of her husband, Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, Philadelphia theatrical magnate, in their villa here last March. The former St. Louis Beauty contest queen won on a plea of self defense.

It was a brief but dramatic trial from the time it started this morning until the jury returned with its verdict.

The stiffling court room was packed and when the proceedings resumed after the luncheon recess, 1,000 men and women, many of them American, stormed the courtroom. Police reserves required 20 minutes to clear the corridors.

When the jury filed in and announced its verdict the spectators, most of them friends of the defendant, cheered. Mrs. Nash, the defendant's elderly mother, was overcome with emotion.

The former "queen of beauty" gave way to emotion while recounting how she fired the shots that ended her husband's life in their apartment on the fashionable Promenade Des Anglais here six weeks ago.

"I can't remember what did happen when my husband grasped my throat," she cried after accusing Nixon-Nirdlinger of attacking her in a fit of violent jealousy.

Her voice failed and, unable to proceed, she sank back into her chair. Most of the women in the room wept with her.

"She is too beautiful to be bad," the defense counsel told the jurors, reiterating that the defendants plea of self-defense had been amply substantiated by the testimony.

EFFORT TO SOLVE BURGLARIES FAIL

Police Release Four Arrested After Capture of Man in Store.

Hopes of police in clearing up a number of recent store burglaries here faded today with the release of four young men who had been questioned at headquarters. The four were arrested yesterday following the capture of Richard Roberts, 20, in the alleged attempt to burglarize the L. H. Cheney grocery at 442 west Columbia street.

The four men who had been questioned by police in regard to other recent burglaries were released when officers were unable to link them with any of the thefts.

Roberts, however, is being held at police headquarters on an investigation charge pending further developments in the police quiz.

Police arrested Roberts shortly after 1 a. m. yesterday. When patrolmen answered a call from a resident in the neighborhood of the Cheney store stating that a man had been seen to break a window and enter the store, they found Roberts behind a counter. A revolver was on the floor beside him, police said. He made no effort to resist arrest.

Roberts' arrest led to the arrest of the four others, all of whom have been released.

COURT RULES ON PAYMENTS

Appellate Judges of Fourth District Holds Fees Paid Attorneys Legally.

VICTORY FOR EXECUTORS

Orders Exceptions of Masonic Lodge to Accounts Overruled in Probate Court.

When Harry J. Merchant and Clyde C. Smith, executors of the estate of Burr Raichley, paid approximately $30,000 to themselves and attorneys for defending the will against heirs who contested the will, they were acting within their rights in law, the fourth district court of appeals ruled in an opinion on the case, received by Clerk of Courts Everett B. Grigsby, today.

Reverses Other Decisions

Contrary to the rulings of both the probate court and common pleas court here, the payments of $24,500 to John Bartram, Fred E. Guthery, Grant E. Mouser, James H. Eymon, all of Marion, and A. K. Hall, of Upper Sandusky, counsel for the executors when the will was attacked in court, were legal, the appellate court holds.

After reversing the findings of the probate and common pleas court, the court of appeals remanded the case to the probate court here with instructions that all exceptions filed in the case by the Marion Masonic Temple Co. which objected to the executors paying attorneys the $24,500 and themselves special fees, be overruled. The effect of this is the allowance and approval of the payments made by the executors to themselves and their attorneys.

The case dates back to Feb. 21, 1925, when the will of Burr Raichley was contested in federal court at Toledo by relatives. The executors, Merchant and Smith, employed the five attorneys at various times to defend the will against the efforts of Raichley's relatives to break it.

After successfully defending the case, the attorneys were paid approximately $24,500 for their legal services.

File Exceptions

When the executors filed their third and fourth accounts in the settlement of the estate in probate court, the Marion Masonic Temple Co. filed exceptions to the payments made by the executors to themselves and attorneys. The Masonic Co. was represented by Attorney Lyle Evans of Chillicothe. The probate court sustained the receive only $11,000,000 as compared with an estimate of $30,000,000 a year.

And an income tax will always be an "unreliable source upon which to depend for revenue," he said, citing reports to the effect that the federal government will lose $1,000,000,000 this year due to business conditions.

Chandler said his organization is in favor of the measure recommended by the special legislative tax committee which provides for a low rate on classified intangible wealth including securities, capital and deposits.

Must Replace Huge Loss

This bill aims to raise $27,000,000 a year to replace losses incurred by repeal of the uniform rule but is linked with a recommended 10 per cent. tax on cigarets and tobacco, and there is some possibility that the legislature might turn to a general sales tax to make further reductions on real estate. These forms of business taxes are the main target of the merchants.

Farmers organizations, like the merchants have declared for an income tax. They were scheduled to be heard today, along with representatives of the bankers and building and loan associations which are vitally affected by the classified bill.

The honored Americans will be introduced by Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, wife of the American ambassador.

exceptions and ruled that the attorneys and executors should pay back to the estate approximately $80,000. Under the will the Temple company was the chief beneficiary.

The executors and attorneys appealed to the common pleas court, represented by J. Malcolm Strelitz and Hector S. Young. Judge George B. Scofield affirmed the finding of the probate court.

The case was carried to the court of appeals, where, in the decision received here today, Judges Mauck, Middleton and Blosser gave the attorneys and executors a victory.

Should the Marion Masonic Temple Co. desire to press the suit farther, it may file a motion with the supreme court of Ohio to certify the case to that court. It then would be up to the supreme court to decide whether it will review the case.

The appellate court estimates the value of the Raichley case at a quarter of a million dollars, and in its opinion sets forth that Raichley left a few thousand dollars to relatives, bequeathing the remainder of the estate, consisting largely of valuable real estate and first class securities to the Masonic Temple Co.

The text of the appellate court ruling on the Raichley will matter will be published in substance in the Thursday issue of The Star.

OHIO BILLS GOOD COMEDY

"Misbehaving Ladies" comes to the Ohio Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The cast is headed by Lila Lee ... Bert Lyon and includes Louise Fazenda and Lucien Littlefield in character roles. Louise Fazenda gets her heaviest foreign fan mail from Portugal, according to one feature writer. Maybe it's because her name means farm in Portuguese and is as common in that country as Smith is here. Louise is a mixture of Portuguese, Italian, Dutch and English—so the story goes but that may be just another press-agent's yarn.

WILLIAM POWELL AT PALACE

Seventy-seven men and one woman were awarded letters for athletic prowess recently by the University of California at Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Haughton made their first holes-in-one in the same week on the Portland Ore., Golf club course.

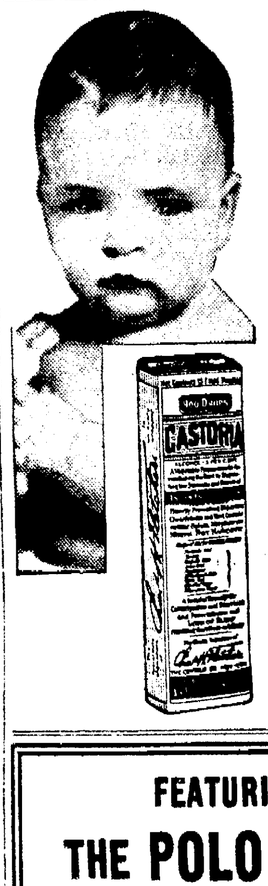
WHEN CHILDREN CRY



CHILDREN often cry for no apparent reason. Many times we can't guess what is wrong. The crying may mean a touch of colic; the little bowels may be sluggish—or some other upset. It may mean any of the common little ailments that children suffer. To bring quick comfort to your little one, give a few drops of Castoria. Most upsets of children are soon soothed away by this pleasant-tasting remedy that children all love.

In five million modern homes, Castoria is a mother's first thought when a child is out of sorts, feverish, cross, doesn't eat right or sleep right. When bad breath, coated tongue, or languor tells of constipation. These five million wise mothers know that children should never be given stronger medicines meant for the fully developed systems of grown-ups. Castoria is gentle—safe, yet always thorough and effective for a child of any age. It may be given to the tiniest infant for any little upset. When buying, look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on wrapper.

Mad Pursuit

CHAPTER 27

By a Dead Hand

She could only think of something her father's pictures; something she had Jon were going to do. She was going to go far away, to forget the past, beginning with crossing the Alps...she would forget that picture of the Villa Rosa and ice-green glaciers. She had never painted like that. Those were her father's pictures. That was his exhibition: those people crowding around him wanted to share the splendor of his recent achievement.

But who had painted those pictures? She sat up straight, clenching her hands together. Where had her father gotten those pictures that were signed so glibly with his name?

Terrible to think like this. Terrible if it were not true. But where had her father gotten those pictures? She sank back and closed her eyes. In a moment she was dozing. Again she was in the garden of the Villa Rosa and Nicholas was crouching down beside her, staring at his helpless hand. Why must she torture herself with dreams of Nicholas now? She started awake at last. Here was Jon again, and she must brace herself to meet him.

"How white you are, darling. Tired out with excitement. We'll drive right out home. I want Damon to know ... and I want you, Nora. ..."

"Nothing will ever keep you from me now?" she asked him.

"Nothing ever could!"

"Don't let's go home."

"Why?"

"Damon doesn't like me. I saw it that first time."

"Damon will love you when she knows you."

She closed her eyes again. Grinding, roaring over the tracks, tunneling through the darkness, then into the brilliant sunshine again. Would she go on like this forever, never reaching anywhere, but always living through this tortuous and terrible dream?

"What's the matter, Nora? Nothing's happened.

The train slid into the station at last. At last they were driving across the city. She was grateful for the low buildings the small old-fashioned houses, with their quaint old-world air, trees again and the long purple road that led to the Thayer house.

At last they were in the silvery gray room of Jon's home, the sunset coming in through tall windows.

How feverish her eyes looked, how desperately white she was. She flung off her hat with a wild gesture and saw then that someone else was in the room. Damon was sitting in the window, and she rose and came slowly toward Nora. Her tea gown with its delicate lace fell away at the throat, showing her milky skin. Her fair hair was bound around her head like a shining coif. She held out a cool hand to Nora as they sat down.

Nora began to talk breathlessly about nothing. Was Damon going to stay at home now. Had she had a pleasant summer? Damon answered quietly, her eyes never once on Nora's face.

"Where have you been today?" Damon asked tonelessly.

"Oh, I was in New York—I met Jon—Jon's been so kind—"

Why did she talk in this senseless, crazy fashion? Why was she half mad with excitement?

She kept turning her eyes toward the window. There was something that she could not look at, something that changed the whole room.

"You see, I brought it down from my room," Damon said at last.

Nora was forced to look at Nicholas' painting of the old peasant woman. The brilliant light that suffused the scene; and the old woman with her patient folded hands.

All at once there was nothing more to say. Damon was looking at the picture, looking back at her. Here was Jon with the cocktail shaker. Nora grasped a thin stemmed glass and drank it thirstily. She felt as though everything in the room were spinning about her in a mad fantastic dance, and in the center Nicholas' picture blazed in a circle of light.

Damon and Jon were talking, and she sat there looking at them, as though they were strangers.

"You've heard about the show?" Jon asked. "Nora hasn't told you? Her father's a wild success."

"I, too, saw the exhibition," Damon said.

The words dropped into the silent room as though they had fallen into a pool. Nora was battling through this silence, like a spent swimmer who fights for life.

"Tell me about your father's paintings," Damon was saying.

"I have nothing to tell you."

Why did her words spin off into this dreadful silence? Why was Damon looking at her in this strange searching way as though she were a small insect, secure on a pin, an insect struggling for escape?

"I should prefer that you would tell me when he painted all those pictures."

"How could I tell you?"

Her voice was hoarse. She wondered what had made it hoarse.

"I see that you know."

"Know—what?"

Damon's eyes sought the picture of the old peasant woman. In another moment Damon was going to say something that would change the face of the whole world for them both. She must stave it off.

"I don't know what you mean!"

"You know who painted those pictures."

The words were like hammer strokes, each one crashing against her skull. Her head sank lower and lower.

"The man who painted those pictures is dead," Damon said.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

WEDNESDAY. It was still warm and bammy when me and Jubilee woke up this morning and I would just as soon it would rain a little at night or whilst a fella is in school, or my mother will have me hanging onto the hose all the spare time I have got. The only fella that likes to squirt with a hose is the fella that don't have to because his folks haven't got one.

I kicked Jubilee out of bed when we woke up and then I swatted him with a pillow, and then he remembered me swinging him into my ant's room through her window, and when I got his rope to let him down by he gave a run and jumped out of the window, and if it hadn't been for Farrel's one story house being next to ours and close up he would have fell till he hit the ground, and then he would have been busted wide open, but he landed on Farrel's roof and stuck there with his hind feet in their eave trough, and he squinched down and looked over his shoulder at me and I clumb out of our window and reached acrosst with my feet and braced them on Farrel's roof and leaned against our house with one hand and gave him the rope with the other and was letting him down when Youniss and Feeble and Maggie came by on their way to our house to wait for me to go to school, and the first I knew they were there was when Feeble said, "Well, well!" I let Jubilee drop the rest of the way and the rope with him, and I went into the window of our house like a squirrel or a bird; only a bird has got feathers to cover itself up with and a squirrel has got a bushy tail.

I would have liked to of stayed in the house all day but I knowed my father would be after me so I put on my short pants and went down and got the pail and went out to the barn to milk the dummed brutes, and the girls weren't anywheres around. They didn't come till we were almost through with breakfast, and when my mother told them they were late Youniss said they overslept, and then Feeble said she had a funny dream she would tell us some time. I said that people who told their dreams didn't have some enough to have a dream that would interest anyone, and she said if I ever dreamt I was hanging out of a window she bet that would be interesting, and just then Youniss gave her a push and she [illegible] it when she fell down and [illegible] bellee Lee's oatmeal went [illegible] down in Feeble's lap [illegible] mother just to corrupt it [illegible] table cloth and [illegible] Feeble went in [illegible]

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

I WAS WEAK enough to be glad that the telephone in the Ticer sitting-room is so situated that I did not have to stand with my back to the window, the glass of which I had shattered when I had thrown the coffee pot at the Chinese whose face had been pressed against it. Even while I was talking I could watch that window, and, indeed, I never took my eyes from it, even through the flurry which my telephone conversation brought to my nerves.

For Martha Halkett's first words when she had spoken my name were a breathless apology.

"Oh! Mrs. Graham, what shall I say to you?" she began. "Of course, of all times in the world, the telephone operator was summoned away from her desk just a few seconds before I came in. I was late, you know, on account of my dentist's appointment.

"Yes, yes, I know," I said as she paused, and trying to keep my impatience out of my voice.

Disappointing News

"It wasn't her fault, at all, because it was a summons from the front office, and she had no time to leave a message for me. And she thought, of course, that she would be back before I arrived. I got through at the dentist's sooner than I expected, and when I reached my desk, the first thing I saw was your letter. The mail was just going out, and I had to hurry like mad to get the envelope addressed as you said, enclose the other in it and stamp it properly. I just made the mail, and not two minutes afterward, the girl came back and said to disregard your letter and telephone you. I got the first elevator downstairs, but the boy was gone beyond recall. I have just returned and am telephoning you. I do hope that I haven't disarranged any of your plans."

"Then the letter has been mailed," I heard myself saying.

"Yes, it has gone, exactly as you asked in your letter."

"And exactly as I wished," I made my voice friendly and approving, the while I was mentally anathematizing her efficiency with the injustice which one instinctively uses in blaming something gone wrong. "After I had sent it to you, I thought of something I had omitted from the letter, and thought I would keep it until the next mail. But this morning I realized that I did not wish to sacrifice speed in transmission to any additional messages, so I am much relieved to know it caught the mail. Thank you so much. How much were the stamps?"

"They belonged to the firm." She laughed merrily. "We do not charge for letters sent to Mr. Bickett."

"Then thank you again," I said, "and I won't keep you for I know how busy you are. Good-bye."

"Good-bye." The telephone clicked and I hung up the receiver and walked toward the door, keeping my eyes on the shattered window. I did not sit down on the couch again, but drew a chair so near the door into the little hall that I could easily spring through it if the terrifying face should appear again.

Not that I really expected to see it. I was beginning to experience, though faintly, the contempt with which one generally begins to regard a danger safely skirted. Though I had no idea how he had accomplished it, without leaving any trace of footprints or blood, he must have been able to reach the cornfield without being seen. From there it was child's play to get into the thicket skirting the road, and so safely away.

Some Consolation

For the moment I had something more important to contemplate, and sinking down in my chair, feeling as spent as if I had been running, I considered the news which Martha Halkett had brought to me.

The letter I had written to Jack had gone—irrevocably gone. There was no way in which I could keep him from reading it. Any cabled message concerning it would involve tremendous expense, and I would face the extreme probability that it would be delivered at the same time as the letter in that wilderness where mail once a month, or even less often, is the rule. A cable also would direct the attention of Ruth Allen to that especial letter which would be fatal to my plan of communication with Jack without the espionage of the woman at whose very name I felt like garfgling my throat.

I never would send another important letter without first sleeping over it. I resolved, flaying myself with the thought of Katherine's justified and certain contempt when she learned how I had broken faith with her. True, I had repented of the letter almost a soon as it had been written, and its sending was an accident, but I quailed at the thought of explaining to my brother-cousin's wife that I had disregarded her express [illegible]

KEEP KISSABLE

...WITH OLD GOLDS

OLD GOLDS were created to give you THROAT-EASE... as well as a more delightful tasting cigarette. But the makers also considered your breath, your lips, your teeth, as well as your THROAT.

They created a pure-tobacco cigarette... entirely free of coriander and other greasy artificial *flavorings that burn into clinging, staining, breath-tainting vapors.

To avoid unpleasant aftermaths, smoke pure-tobacco OLD GOLDS. Their clean, sun-ripened, natural-flavored tobaccos will be like honey to your THROAT. And they leave no objectionable odors either on your breath or clothing, or in the room.

*HERE'S THE PROOF

Open up a pack of OLD GOLDS and smell the tobacco. Do the same with any other cigarette. Judge for yourself which has the natural, pleasant, all-tobacco aroma. It's a favor to your family and friends, as well as to yourself, to smoke NATURAL-FLAVORED, pure-tobacco OLD GOLDS.

CIRCUS CHILDREN HAVE SCHOOL

In these days of the "big circus" where the number employed runs up to a thousand or over, to provide for all of the features, naturally there are whole families in the list of performers. They have children. These children are provided with a schooling.

Each morning one of the performers of Robbins Bros. circus, which will show here Friday, May 22, takes the time to gather the little tots under one of the tents and proceed to direct them in their lessons for the day. There is always a teacher or two in the outfit and the instruction is the same as in the public schools. Many of the children are unusually bright and give every evidence of becoming active and important citizens.

The studies are practically the same as those in school although a great deal of stress is put on mathematics and upon physical culture. It is in these lines that some day they will grow up and take place of their fathers and mothers as performers in the 'sawdust ring.'

Flashes of Life

By The Associated Press

LONDON—Praying for prosperity, Britons are to say the 23rd psalm, beginning "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want." Its use in churches next Sunday, Empire day, is urged in letters by prelates.

• • •

NEW YORK—Max Pincus has lost a smile that wouldn't come off and he has reverted to such an appearance as folks expect a hearse driver to have. He had a lottery ticket on the derby. As a joke somebody sent him a telegram that he had won $20,000. He gave up his job and spent $100 on a dinner for friends before he was disillusioned. But he got his job back.

• • •

NEW YORK—Belle Livingston, who calls herself 'the empress of Bohemia," is leaving for Reno, not to get a divorce but to get rich "I'll run some sort of a place and partake in the divorce windfall," she said just after being fined as the result of a visit to her New York establishment by prohibition agents.

• • •

LONDON—A non-skid memorandum pad is in use in some business offices. It has a rubber back which grips a desk. The idea is that it will stay put and will not elude a busy business man taking notes of deals over the telephone.

• • •

BIRMINGHAM, Alabama—Senator Black is real busy when he goes to lunch. His secretary has made some calculations about it. One trip of three blocks required an hour. There were handshakes every five feet

• • •

NEWARK, New Jersey—For 17 days Lieutenant Bernard Heflin of the West Orange police paged Lily and got so he would have welcomed arrest as a masher. A farmer reported that Lily, a bay mare, had been stolen, but ought to be found easily since she bowed three time when her name was called. The only bow in answer to many greetings from the lieutenant was from a horse pulling a junk wagon in Newark.

To Broadcast—Miss Mildred Duffy of 569 south Prospect street will broadcast a group of old fashioned songs over radio station WAIU of Columbus Friday at 10 a. m.

Men like to talk about themselves—seldom about anybody else. They are the artless egotist boys.

Liberty is dangerous when everybody has a portion of it, and much more so when only a few have it.

Wayne Poultry Supplies Triumph Again!

Marion, Ohio.
Route No. 8.
May 6, 1931

Allied Mills, Inc.,
Fort Wayne, Ind.
Gentlemen:

We have 200 Leghorns hens on Wayne Egg Mash which gave us a 60 to 65% egg production all winter. They were raised on Wayne Starter and Wayne Grower last year.

We placed 710 Leghorn eggs from our own flock in the incubator this spring and hatched 612 chicks which shows excellent fertility and hatchability from Wayne Egg Mash, after rapid growth and heavy egg production

We placed these chicks on Wayne All Mash Starter and at 2 weeks of age have lost 24 chicks. Chicks were not culled from incubator when placed in brooder. We have used other feeds but find Wayne gives best results.

Yours Truly,
Fess Cochran

Central Junior High Annual Distributed to 600 Students Today.

Six hundred copies of "The Cauldron," Central Junior High school year book, were issued today. This is the second year that the annual has been printed.

Eight pages are of glossy finish paper with pictures of Superintendent George A. Bowman, Principal W. E. Orcutt, the faculty, snapshots of school organizations and clubs, school officers, the eighth and ninth grade boys and girls, the school boy patrol, eighth grade operetta cast, school orchestra, Girl Reserves and Torch club, boys' and girls' glee clubs and the basketball squad.

The book is dedicated to the Indians, and the decorations at the head of each page and at the begining of each section are Indian motifs. The contents were mimeographed in the school offices on heavy buff paper. The cover is of green leatherette stamped with a picture of a cauldron, lettered over with the name of the book and the year.

The 60-page annual was published without the financial aid of advertising and was sold to the student body at a minimum cost.

O. C. Romans Carries Case to Appellate Court.

MT. GILEAD, May 20—Attorneys for O. C. Romans have filed a petition in the district court of appeals asking a new trial.

He was convicted April 21 in the common pleas court here on a charge of embezzling $8,000 of the funds of the Morrow County Farmers Mutual Insurance Co. of Cardington while acting as secretary and treasurer of the company.

A motion for a new trial was overruled by Judge W. P. Vaughan and Romans was sentenced to serve one to five years in the penitentiary.

BUCYRUS COUNCIL TO BUY METZGER TRACT

Overrides Objections of Mayor To Provide City with New Airplane Landing Field.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, May 20 — Overriding objections raised by Mayor Arthur Schuler when he vetoed an ordinance authorizing the purchase of a municipal airport, the Bucyrus council during session Tuesday night unanimously adopted a new ordinance authorizing the purchase from Peter Metzger of a 64-acre tract of land south of the city at a new price of $9,750. The ordinance vetoed by the mayor provided for the purchase of the same site at a price of $10,000.

The question of the purchase of the site was again brought before council Tuesday night by Councilman Fred Metzger, chairman of the finance committee, who stated that reliable parties had signified their intention of signing a lease for the port and of making it a going concern. The port was recently placed in operation by Miss Lauretta Schimmoler.

Mayor Schuler although opposing the purchase, indicated that he would not veto the legislation when he made the suggestion that the remainder of the amount of the bond issue, which was for $15,000, be turned over to the sinking fund trustees for investment. The mayor pointed out that the remaining $5,000 could, in the hands of the trustees, be increased at 5 per cent instead of the two per cent which it is now bringing in the airport fund. Upon motion by the council the mayor's suggestion was placed in the hands of the finance committee.

The adoption of the ordinance Tuesday night was marked by the approval of the entire council membership. At the time the previous purchase ordinance was passed two councilmen, C. P. Gaa and George Ryan consistently refused to give their approval.

Legislation regulating the installation of water pipes was given a second reading The ordinance provides for all new and renewed services to be constructed of lead, brass or copper.

LEE STREET INTRODUCED TO NO. 1 CHURCH LEAGUE WITH 10-1 BEATING BY TRINITY BAPTISTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

AFTER a week's delay on account of rain, competition in the No. 1 Sunday school league got under way yesterday with a quartet of games going by the boards. With a single exception, the favorites came through with victories. Epworth Bishops provided a mild upset when it toppled the Epworth Seniors 4 to 1 in a strictly Epworthian affair.

Trinity Baptist welcomed the Lee Street Presbyterians into No. 1 league competition by crashing out a total of 17 safe hits off a pair of hurlers to beat the league newcomers 10 to 1.

Started Easily

The Baptists treated the Lee Street boys as company should be treated in the first inning, only warming up to their work with a single counter. In the second inning base hits commenced to rattle off their bats like hailstones off a tin roof and before the smoke had cleared away there were five runs chalked up on the Trinity side of the scorebook. Not content with this lead the Baptists added five more in later innings. Lee Street hit safely four times.

It is quite possible that St. Mary is as capable of beating John Clark's Epworth No. 1 team but no one knows yet. The Irish nine got an 8-1 decision yesterday but didn't earn it. They didn't have to. Clark's two hurlers, Gamble and Snyder gave it to them by issuing free tickets to first base. The two passed nine men. The Irish took the game 8 to 1.

Mautz Hurls Well

The Epworth Bishops turned in some neat work in the infield to back up some good hurling on the part of Eddie Mautz and handed Earl Smart's Seniors a 4 to 1 trimming. The Bishops were outhit six to five but Mautz was too effective in the pinches to let the Seniors threaten very seriously at any time.

The Lutherans put up a stiffer battle than expected against the Calvary nine but finally succumbed to the league champions 6 to 2. Calvary played the game with a revamped lineup in an effort to inject more defensive ability in the infield. Fido Robbins was moved into first base and his place at third taken by Cummings, a newcomer to the Calvary lineup.

8-6 VICTORY GIVES LOUISVILLE TOP POST

Columbus Defeats Toledo 7-4 in Series Final; Millers Beat Kaws.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 20—Louisville Colonels today were back in the whip seat, first place, in the closely bunched American Association pennant race.

They ascended to the top of the heap again yesterday as they defeated Indianapolis, 8 to 6, in the concluding game of their series while Milwaukee tripped St. Paul, 6 to 3. The victory, combined with St. Paul's setback, gave the Colonels a half game margin in the race.

Columbus crowded St. Paul a little closer by capturing a 7 to 4 decision from Toledo. Bud Parmalee hurled the route for his fourth straight victory, drove in two runs with three hits and scored another for himself. The Red Birds clinched the game in the seventh with three runs.

Norris' triple, followed by Fette's wild pitch gave Minneapolis the run in the ninth inning that defeated Kansas City, 7 to 6, in their series opener at Minneapolis.

CLEVELAND BEATEN ELEVENTH STRAIGHT BY NEW YORK 8- 6

Athletics Tighten Hold on op Post by Defeating Detroit 5 to 0.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Major league baseball teams are busy these days proving that forecasts of a close race in the National league and the Athletics again in the American were correct.

The St. Louis and New York National league clubs are battling for the lead only a half game apart. The Philadelphia Athletics, while they have not been able to outdistance their leading rivals, are on top and have done their best to make it a runaway by winning eleven straight.

The A's downed the Detroit Tigers 5-0 yesterday behind the unbeatable pitching of big George Earnshaw. The Philadelphia right hander gave just two hits while his teammates, led by Al Simmons, made good use of nine blows off Waite Hoyt. Simmons, hitting in his seventeenth consecutive game, connected for a single, a double and a triple.

No Gain for A's

The victory resulted in no gain for the A's, however, for their leading rivals, the New York Yankees, staged a comeback to hand Cleveland its eleventh straight defeat, 8 to 6. The Indians, whose weakness is one of the season's puzzles, made a great attempt to break their losing streak by driving Charley Ruffing from the mound in the second inning, but Henry Johnson pitched good relief ball and Clint Brown could not still the big bats of the Yanks in the early innings.

Washington lost some ground as rain stopped the game at Chicago. Wet grounds halted Boston and St. Louis.

Timely slugging enabled the National league leaders, the Cardinals, and their strongest rivals, the Giants, to continue their race. The Cards beat Brooklyn 6 to 2 as the Robins failed to give Babe Phelps good support. They got only two runs on 11 hits off Hallahan and Derringer and made five errors. The Giants took things fairly easy against Cincinnati, using young Bill Morrell on the mound for the full game and holding Critz out of the lineup, but they won out easily, 9 to 3.

Braves Beat Cubs

The third place Boston Braves continued their pursuit of the leaders by pushing Chicago deeper into fourth. Aided by three Cub errors, the Braves scored eight runs in the first inning and won out 9 to 5. "Ace" Elliott of the Phillies was in the hole again but this time it was not of his own making. He relieved Jim Elliott in the ninth inning with none out and the bases full and retired the Pirates in time to save a 3 to 2 victory. The victory left Philadelphia only half a game behind the fifth place Pittsburghers.

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

New potatoes figured in a sensational drop this morning when dealers announced a selling price of from 40 to 60 cents a peck, cheaper than old stock which are still selling at from 45 to 55 cents a peck.

An over supply due to the accumulation of stock on hand was given by dealers for the drop in price. A further drop is anticipated before the close of the week but next week will find the price back closer to normal, dealers were predicting today.

Other vegetable prices were firm, a drop in head lettuce was being reported on the wholesale market this morning but the retail markets had not been effected at noon today.

Fruit prices were also steady today. Strawberries were coming in the market in quanities about sufficent to meet the demand and were selling at from 20 to 30 cents a quart. Cantaloupes were selling today at 25 cents.

GRAINS MOVE IN DOWNTREND

Moisture In Canada Drouth Aids Bear Movement In Wheat Pit.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 20 — In the absence of reports on any actual damage by frosts, grain prices averaged lower early today. Word of further moisture furnishing drouth relief in Canada tended also to give bears an advantage. Opening at 3-8 cents off to 1-8 up, wheat afterward underwent setbacks. Corn started unchanged to 3-8 lower and subsequently declined all around.

Although heavy frosts were reported over most of Nebraska and in territory northward, no positive assertions that harm had resulted to wheat were at hand. Some unfavorable Kansas crop advices were current, based largely on too rapid growth and on failure to stool properly, but were ignored by most traders. However, new forecasts of freezing temperatures tonight both in winter and spring wheat regions led later to price rallies. There were rumors, too, of disturbed political conditions in Russia.

Capital Police in Collusion with Criminals, Senator Charges.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, May 20—Gang war in the capital city today reached a stage more acute than ever before in its history, with two underworld slayings, arrest of a policeman in connection with one, and charges by a United States senator that police were acting in collusion with criminals.

Policeman Wallace J. Middleton was arrested following a tour of duty at the circus grounds and questioned for an hour in connection with the mysterious gang murder Monday night of Jack Cunningham, police informer and reputed bootlegger and racketeer.

Senator Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, charged directly that certain police officers were acting in collusion with underworld characters, and that the Commissioner Herbert Crosby was a "good man who is having the wool pulled over his eyes."

MARION'S 3 BIG ECONOMY SURPRISE DAYS

Thursday - Friday - Saturday

Do Not Miss This!

Marion merchants have combined their efforts for three Big-Economy-Surprise-Days, tomorrow, Friday and Saturday. To you who are interested in the new in every line of personal and home adornment, the practical in merchandise for every-day use and exceptional values in each purchase—these three days offer an unusually good opportunity to fulfill your desires.

Behind each store's announcements are weeks of careful preparation. Stocks have been carefully scanned. Additional purchases have been made. Sizes and styles have been filled in. Prices have been adjusted to levels which offer real, worthwhile inducements. In fact, such prices have seldom appeared.

This is a more pretentious effort than any offered to this community in recent years and we believe that a careful perusal of the advertising on this and other pages of this paper will quickly convince you that you cannot afford to let anything interfere with your presence in Marion for this event.

The things that you can buy at today's low prices can bring you happiness, enjoyment, comfort for weeks or months or years. You won't match these low prices for a long time.

Following Are a Few of the Outstanding Values Included in the Store Announcements

Gentlemen:

I welcome this opportunity to put on record the benefits I have enjoyed from using ZZZ tablets purchased at your drugstore.

About three years ago last September, my physician advised me that my complication of gall, liver and appendix ailments had reached a point that my only hope for recovery rested with the success of a serious abdominal operation. His examinations snowed my physical condition to be such that the hope of a successful operation appeared extremely doubtful.

With this discouraging prospect before me, I tried taking ZZZ tablets and have continued them until this time. I feel that I am completely cured of all my gall and liver ailments and am ready to verify this letter at any time and recommend your remedy to any who may inquire.

Yours very truly,
(Signed)
Mrs. J. W. Tucker,
Route 2,
Marion, Ohio.

Mrs. Tucker is not alone in her experience with ZZZ tablets. We have many customers willing to testify to their excellent qualities in cleaning and stimulating a sluggish or ailing liver and gall bladder. One month's treatment in a $3.75 box.

IF INDIVIDUAL BLOOD TESTS HAD BEEN REQUIRED WHEN THE UNITED STATES TOOK ITS 1930 CENSUS LAST YEAR WE WOULD NEVER HAVE NEEDED TO HAVE WRITTEN THIS AD!

Frankly, now, that statement sounds ridiculous doesn't it? Nevertheless, foolish as it may sound, there is a world of truth in it.

A large percentage of the public is Suffering from varying stages of anemia and yet consider themselves in glowing health.

In the cases of adults, their conditions are no doubt the forerunners of more serious troubles to follow later.

With children, they are being deprived of the fruits of their best efforts in school and play because of a condition unknown to them and disregarded by their parents.

YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF AND TO YOUR FAMILY TO KEEP YOUR BLOOD AT ITS BEST

Liver, yes, just plain, everyday butcher shop liver, is Nature's Gift to the man who needs better blood. Scientists with international reputations and the corner druggist will tell you that.

We are introducing in Marion, Diamond Blood Building Capsules. Concentrated liver with all its properties for producing rich new blood combined with cleansing agencies to drive poison and impurities from your system and cleanse your blood and you have the story of Diamond Blood Building capsules.

For them, we do not claim they are a "cure-all," but we do claim that regardless of the nature of your ailment, if you are in a weakened condition of any sort or failing in any way, you will not make a mistake in taking Diamond Blood building capsules.

We invite you to try them at our expense. We have bottled samples, each sufficient for one week's treatment. The value of each of these samples is $1.00. We invite you to call at our store with this article and obtain one of these samples before all are gone. We will endeavor to serve all who come. This is the last time this offer will be made!

Dear Sir:

I have been a sufferer from ulceration and irritation of the stomach and bowels for 20 years. I have tried all remedies that I have heard about, with slight improvement.

Sometime ago, my attention was called to Yellow Root & Clay which I have consistently used. I have taken five bottles and can say that I feel that I am cured of the dreadful malady that afflicted me.

I live at 394 Olney av. Marion, and am employed as a toolmaker at the Marion Steam Shovel Co. I will gladly verify this testimonial upon request.

(Signed) H. B. Jones.

This is one of many encouraging reports received from those to whom we have sold Yellow Root & Clay. If you are a sufferer from Ulcers irritation or colitis, try this really wonderful remedy

Business Judgment" Forgotten in $6,000,000 Project, Senators Say.

... that the ordinary pre... in the business world ... standpoint of economy ... business judgment ... forgotten in this enter... report concluded. "There ... a feeling that in the ... of public funds the ... available is unlimited and ... dictates of prudence ... are, as in this instance, ...

... report also asserts, that ... original appropriation ... was intended to pro... and lighting not only ... new building but also for ... and the annex as well as ... for other remodeling of the capitol, no provisions for any of these were made by the commission. Recommendation is made that plans for heating the new structure be made with private concerns as this method probably would be cheaper than attempting to supply heat from the penitentiary. Lighting and power current may be obtained from the penitentiary, the report said.

The commission also was criticised for not selling the Wyandot building and the Hartman hotel lease back in 1929 when real estate values still were at a high level, it being asserted that no attempt ever was made to dispose of these properties though directed by the law to do so. At that time, the report said, approximately $600,000 could have been realized from their sale whereas at presnt prices not more than $300,000 or $350,000 could be obtained. To sell them now would result in serious less to the state, the report said.

Implied criticism also is made of the commission's action in employing an architect at six per cent. of the gross cost, totaling $240,000 and two consulting architects at one-half of one per cent., totaling $20,000. "These selections were made without the submission of bids as advised by the American Institute of Architects," the report stated.

Bettman Commended

Attorney General Gilbert Bettman and his staff were highly commended for the work done by the state's legal department in obtaining the site and "in their endeavor to carry forward this project with economy and precision."

Members of the investigating committee are Senators C. J. Anderson of Shelby, chairman; Walter G. Nickels of New Philadelphia and Nils P. Johnson of Youngstown, Republicans, and Paul P. Yoder of Dayton, and Louis J Eberle of Nelsonville, Democrats. Members of the building commission are Carmi A. Thompson of Cleveland; William F. Wiley of Cincinanti; William Green of Coshocton; Elmer E. Landes of Wooster, and Warner P. Simpson of Columbus. Harry Hake of Cincinnati is the architect.

ALUMNI MEET

Leslie Baker Named President of Meeker Association.

MEEKER, May 20—Leslie Baker was named president of the Meeker Alumni association at a meeting Saturday night. Robert Hickman was named secretary-treasurer.

Sixty-two members of the association and members of this year's graduating class attended the banquet in the Meeker school. M. A. Povenmire was toastmaster and B. A. Moore, former superintendent, gave a talk. A committee directed by Jesse Clark arranged the event.

Daily Proverb—"No errors are so dangerous as those of a great man."

Some of the big city papers are running in serial form the life story of Clara Bow. It's simply amazing to what extent the press will sometimes go to present to its readers matters of vital interest and import.

Moscow explains that vodka and the marriage laws over there are slowing up soviet Russia's five-year plan; that married men are filling up on the great national beverage, and forcing their wives to do the work they, the men, are supposed to do, while they are laying around drunk. "Liberty and Equality!"

There is no ground for disputing the contention of Judge Selah B. Strong that "each year more laws are enacted and more crimes are committed," but it's worth remembering that the big end of the criminals apprehended are those whose crimes are such as result of man-made laws.

Dr. J. S. Plaskett and Dr. J. A. Pearce, of the Dominion Astrophysical observatory at Victoria, British Columbia, are said to have discovered a massive new star, which is headlined as a planet. That leaves ground for guessing whether it's a comparatively near neighbor of our own kind, or a mighty sun far away.

Twenty-five attendants of the college of business administration of Boston university have been suspended for falsifying their lecture attendance records. It should soon be apparent generally that there is need in our institutions of learning for teaching something above and beyond that which is now classed in the line of education.

A would-be patron of a Washington night club shot and seriously wounded the manager of the place, killed a policeman and then shot and killed himself, all because the manager failed to provide him a table. Some people are mighty sensitive about their right to be held up and robbed.

Germany is said to be getting drier and drier as the beer tax goes higher and higher, the present tax making beer cost from six to nine cents a pint, according to the surroundings and service in the place in which it is purchased. It would require some real orator to convince the beer-drinking element of America that even the top price quoted constituted any considerable hardship, but there's this difference; the German beer drinker often lacks the price.

The Simplified Calendar.

Referendum on calendar simplification would show no overwhelming demand for it. That does not prove the idea unsound, nor impossible.

Reforms are not brought about through a spontaneous trend of public opinion. Leaders start people to thinking in a certain way, and the reform follows.

The national committee on calendar simplification makes the convincing point in its arguments that standard time never would have been adopted had it been left to public demand. Under the leadership of the railroads, however, it was adopted.

Reforms are supported by the people when the majority is convinced they would be beneficial. The arguments for a simplified calendar to consist of thirteen months of equal length, each one starting on Sunday and ending on Saturday, are overwhelmingly convincing. Advocates of the fixed calendar are depending on their simple logic for success.

A report filed by the committee on simplification with the department of state for transmittal to the League of Nations claims that a majority favorable to adoption of the calendar is being built up rapidly. The report's claims will be an important part of the consideration at the international conference on calendar simplification to be held in Geneva next October.

"The great majority of the religious population sees no reason for disapproval on the grounds of dogma, doctrine or canon law," the report affirms. A large portion of the commercial population already is using the simplified calendar, and little opposition is foreseen from it.

The simple explanation of the calendar is the most powerful single argument for favorable consideration of it.

There would be thirteen standard months of twenty-eight days each. Each month could be compared with all others. Each year an extra day at the end of December would be dated December 29, and an extra day in leap years would be dated June 29. A new month, called "Sol," would be inserted between June and July, that begin the season when least confusion would be caused by a change.

It is an apparently perfect idea—one that public opinion is being encouraged to support. Beyond a doubt, the simplified calendar will be adopted eventually. It depends on how long it takes the masses to move toward that end.

Big-Scale Problems.

The facility and frequency with which world conferences are called to consider the big-scale problems that confront mankind is nothing less than remarkable. In them and in their increasing use by favored generations yet unborn it is easy to see substantial hope for progress at a rate as yet unknown.

This week, representatives from nearly a dozen countries are assembled in London to devise a scheme for checking the decline in wheat prices throughout the world. A few weeks ago, a world conference to consider sugar prices was convened. Next fall, there will be a world conference to consider calendar simplification. In 1932 there will be a world conference to consider disarmament. Just a few months ago, there was a conference to consider restricting naval armament among the naval powers of the world. A world conference to consider work among the blind adjourned recently. There are literally dozens of others, dealing with a wide range of subjects.

What a vast difference there is between this modern method and the old-fashioned method of dealing with big-scale problems. Formerly, each national or smaller group was obliged to work out its particular part of the world problems affecting it by itself, frequently keeping its answer secret. Worldwide effort to solve problems, what little there was, could only be made by various parties working hundreds and thousands of miles apart, unknown to each other.

It is one aspect of the new era of rapid transportation and communication, with no important part of the world more than a few seconds or hours distant from the other by radio, telephone, automobile, steamship or airplane. The effect is evident already in more sympathetic international attitudes, and will become more evident as men take more and more advantage of the new opportunities given them to work out their problems together.

Robert P. Brewer says that "it has been the most advertised, if not the worst business depression of our times," but it's hard to see how he will make good on his assertion. To our way of thinking the depression has been ideally advertised in every possible way to develop it to the proportions it attained.

There are said to be 40,000,000 jobless in India, which is not so surprising considering the vast population of India. But unemployment doesn't mean so much over there, where a couple of yards of cloth passes for clothing and a little grain affords what many natives consider a repast.

As the result of a milk war down in Lancaster, milk is selling as low as four cents a quart. The war may disturb the dairy business for a time, but it's hardly probable that patrons of the milk dealers are grieving over the fact that that great health food is acquirable for half the cost of its production.

The Railroad Situation.

The probability is that Americans are not half so interested as they should be in what is happening to their railroads. They realize that automobiles and buses have made serious inroads on railroad business, that airplanes promise to make more, and that the railroads' defense is hobbled by certain legislative burdens it has been forced to bear, but they don't worry much about it.

Perhaps they don't care, but it is more reasonable to suppose they shy instinctively from grappling with a problem so huge as to frighten more highly-trained minds. The fact that railroads have shown themselves capable of taking care of themselves in the past also has its effect. Confidence in their ability to do the same in the future has not yet been shaken by instances of failure. There are, on the other hand, many reasons to hope for success.

In Germany a stream-line, propeller-driven railroad car, running over a track adapted to it has been driven at a speed of 110 miles an hour—marking a great potential advance in rail travel. In the United States, which is bound to be interested in the possibilities of such a car, speed is the first requisite for popular transportation.

Elsewhere, many other developments intended to increase the competitive strength of railroads are being made. Traveling comfort is being increased. Higher efficiency is being made possible by new devices and systems. The railroads are doing everything in their power to survive in the struggle.

Salvage experts claim to have located the wreckage of the Pacific Mail liner, Rio de Janeiro, which thirty years ago struck a hidden rock off Fort Point, on the Pacific coast, and sank with a loss of 128 lives and from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000 in gold bullion, the plan of the salvagers being to send down divers and bring the gold to the surface. If the experts are right, it will mean an undersea gold mining enterprise of unprecedented proportions.

Andre Tardieu a day or two ago announced that France has reduced her standing army from 725,000 men in 1922 to 522,000 at present. Frankly, we have here a news item which takes us by surprise.

From Chicago comes the news that the Al Capone gang seized forty-one saloons there belonging to the Kolb gang, tossed out gambling paraphernalia, slot machines, beer and liquor and substituted therefor Capone gambling paraphernalia, beer and liquor. And all this, seemingly, without attracting the attention of the city authorities!

Invoking the Scottish law, Lord Inverclyde has begun a proceeding in Edinburgh against his actress wife, who is about to begin a divorce proceeding in Reno, to keep his wife "in perpetual silence" regarding the facts of their married life. Scottish courts may be able to do much, but this Scottish lord will probably find that miracles are beyond them.

The department of agriculture in Washington estimates that the winter wheat crop of the present year will exceed that of last by 50,000,000 bushels. The estimated crop together with the estimated carry-over will give the country 900,000,000 bushels of wheat, or approximately 400,000,000 bushels more than needed for domestic consumption. Mighty queer way to work for the stabilization of wheat prices.

ANOTHER ALTITUDE RECORD BROKEN.

Editorial Opinion.

NATIONALIZATION OF MOUNT VERNON.

When the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association of the Union can be justly accused of permitting careless and inadequate management of this national shrine, with consequent deterioration of the property, the time will have arrived for congress to consider seriously the recurrent proposals for Mount Vernon's purchase by the government. When this organization of patriotic women proves itself no longer capable of carrying forward a self-imposed and unselfish task, they may be studied the selection of the best substitute.

Until then Mount Vernon will remain in the hands and under the capable management of the women who have held it for seventy-eight years and whose peculiar devotion to a cause has perpetuated a fine tradition.

Nearly every congress hears some impassioned appeal that the government take over and maintain Mount Vernon. The fact that this symbolic shrine is under private ownership and management often elicits expressions of surprise from the foreign visitors whose official courtesies, as our guests, include a visit to the tomb of Washington. A ringing condemnation of the fact that a fee is charged for admission to the grounds naturally carries with it an appeal to popular indignation of a sort, and provokes a faint echo in momentary demands that something should be done.

But if a clamor, which is yet to be raised, ever begins for the nationalization of Mount Vernon a serious study of the pros and cons involved will doubtless silence it. For years the members of the Washington family, witnessing the slow decay of the fine old Mount Vernon property, pleaded with the nation and with the state of Virginia to take it over. For years the nation and the state, for reasons which may have been very practical at the time, refused. And the enthusiasm and determination of the group of women who finally raised the funds and bought Mount Vernon are alone responsible for the fact that Mount Verno exists in its present condition today. Had they not come forward when they did, the site of the famous mansion might now be marked by a stone, and the lovely grounds long since developed as a colony of summer cottages.

Maturity and a reawakened national consciousness of the value of such things have led to the preservation or the creation of many national memorials, maintained by the nation for the citizens. But the adequate maintenance and the complete restoration of all that concerns such places as Mount Vernon would, under federal ownership, still face the natural hazards of bureaucratic management. It is difficult to imagine the pitfalls in congress, for instance, that would lie in wait for a proposal to pay a thousand dollars for a chair? Can not one readily visualize the number of committees and commissions to whom would be intrusted the final decision regarding the hanging, the fabric and the color of drapery?

There are many other considerations leading to the opinion that Mount Vernon is in proper hands; that well enough should be left alone —Washington Star

A NEW MAJOR INDUSTRY.

So gradually and naturally has philanthropy grown from casual charities to the proportions of a great industry we do not comprehend the tremendous import of this social change. It is frequently marked by foreigners coming to America that the most conspicuous trait of this country is the efficiency and vastness of its philanthropies. We have only to glance at the statistics of charitable undertakings to agree.

In the year 1928 gifts for charitable purposes reached the astonishing total of $2,230,000,000, a survey by the New York Trust company indicates. Since the war the pace of philanthropic enterprise has accelerated greatly. Red Cross membership grew nearly 2,000,000 in four years. The Y. M. C. A., to take another single illustration, has increased its investment from $100,000,000 to $160,000,000 in six years. And there are now about 179 foundations in the United States with combined endowment of $1,000,000,000.

This not only makes philanthropy a major industry and a vital part of the national life of America, but it assumes a vast burden of social work and education and research that would have to be done otherwise through government or not at all. More than this, organized giving and the sound administration of these foundations protect our nation against the worldwide tendency toward too rapid socialization. They are a bulwark of individualism and private initiative, and tend to assure the perpetuation of American institutions and ideals far better than social legislation and public expenditure toward the same ends could possibly do.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Table Suggestion.

A study of the five-year-old's eating technique with sundry of the looser breakfast cereals suggests the need of a windshield wiper for the lower face.—Detroit News.

We Should Slow Down.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Within the past decade, statistics show an increasing mortality rate in the United States for persons of the age of forty and over. This is an unpleasant fact.

To what can we attribute this increase?

There is no doubt it is due to negligence on the part of individuals. This negligence has persisted in spite of warnings in youthful years. Even though certain ailments have been known to exist, their victims have neglected to visit their doctors at regular times.

Our modern mode of living tends to decrease the average span of life rather than to increase it. Overeating of rich, spicy foods, and foods rich in protein, such as meat, fish, fowl and eggs, contribute greatly to chronic disorders of the body. In temperate quantities these foods are most desirable, but their overeating is a great mistake.

As a rule, most people indulge too little in exercise. The automobile has taken away what little exercise the average individual might practice. Telephones and other modern inventions have curtailed man's physical activity. He has become an efficient machine at a sacrifice to his body.

It has been said of the American people that they are over stimulated and excessively emotional. Continued emotional excitement, with prolonged mental strain, does more damage to the human mechanism than many infectious diseases.

Hard work to the point of extreme fatigue, interfering with normal sleep, does great damage to the body. Lack of proper food and ample relaxation are causes of many unnecessary ailments. Too much work with too little play has long been recognized as a hindrance to good health.

The need of taking occasional inventory of one's health is imperative. Once the body has been damaged, all that medical science can offer is to prevent its further damage.

It is possible, however, to prevent many serious disorders of the body. This can only be accomplished when the body is treated with respect and care.

We are endowed with all the means of enjoying full life and pleasure. This can be attained only by a carefully planned and regulated life. When this fact has been carefully impressed upon all people there will be an increase in the average span of life

MISS R.D. Q—What causes white spots underneath the fingernails?

A—These spots are usually due to injury to the base of the nail and grow out with the nail itself. They may be caused by improper handling of manicuring instruments, or they may be caused by a blow or some similar injury.

* * *

W.K. Q—What causes low blood pressure?

2—How can I reduce?

A—This is a condition usually found accompanying such diseases as infection, fever, anemia, diabetes, shock, general debility and auto-intoxication.

2—Weight reduction is merely a matter of self-control as regards diet. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

A—Yes, in some instances. You should consult a nose and throat specialist for treatment.

* * *

ANXIOUS Q—What is the cause of deafness? Is there any cure?

2—Would an operation on the nose and tonsils prove to be very painful?

A—In many instances deafness is due to a catarrhal condition. Be sure to clear up any tendency in this direction first of all. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2—Not necessarily, but this would depend upon the seriousness of the operation. Your doctor will advise you.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Earth's Erratic Journeys.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The relativity of all motion, and new modes of arriving at relative velocities, are nowadays much to the fore in the public consciousness. The contributions of Einstein and the numerous discoveries of astronomy have focused attention upon the strange and erratic behavior of many of the heavenly bodies. Elaborate methods have been devised for determining all the peculiar motions of celestial bodies, their direction and velocities. There is now strong grounds for the belief that the entire universe itself is flying apart, each celestial body of appreciable mass slowly separating from every other such body, as the result of loss of mass, with consequent weakening of the mutual force of gravitational attraction.

The earth presents itself as an extraordinary illustration of a body having many different motions, consequent upon the many and varied forces perpetually tugging away at it. The familiar, but obviously erroneous view is that the earth moves in an elliptical, plane orbit around a sun which, for the purposes of argument, is assumed to be momentarily still. But of course, the sun is not still. Indeed, it is moving through space, as we say, at about 18 miles per second in the direction of the constellation Lyra.

Naturally, by reason of gravitational attraction, it carries the earth along with it, revolving about the sun as it goes at an average speed of about 18.6 miles per hour. The natural result, then, is that the earth travels through space in the form of an elliptical spiral—a path approximating the thread of an oval screw.

Yet this does not account for the phenomena as a whole, for the sun is revolving around the center of the Milky Way with a speed of about 180 miles per second. The earth follows the sun in this motion, likewise; so that we must think of the oval screw itself as constantly turning around, not upon its axis, in space, as the earth follows the course of its helical thread.

Moreover, the earth is subject to certain oscillatory motion as the result of the movements of its axis. First, the axis of the earth is not exactly placed to accord with the roughly symmetrical shape of the earth. Second, the shape and weight of the earth are subject to variations, due to the changes of the seasons, the periodic fluctuations in weight caused by the successive forming and melting of vast masses of ice and snow. In consequence, the axis of rotation of the earth is constantly wabbling—moving back and forth, by small amounts which nevertheless can be determined. The first motion causes the poles to trace a circle, twenty-six feet in diameter, every fourteen months. The second force causes the poles to describe another figure in space—a rather thin ellipse about thirty feet long—in a year's time.

Another curious phenomenon is the fluctuating but roughly periodic expansion and contraction of the earth, which has been happily described as a sort of breathing. The resulting change in the diameter of about 8,000 miles is never more than two feet. Furthermore, as a result of the friction of the tides, there is a periodic change in the velocity of rotation. Each day it has been estimated, is longer than the preceding by about one-fortieth part of a millionth of a second.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Early Ohio Medicine.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The hardships endured by the doctors who practiced in pioneer Ohio were unquestionably severe, but their patients, treated by the crude methods of the time suffered even more at their hands. Hocus pocus largely took the place of the science in medicine of today. Medicines and methods were used without any well-known reason. Calomel and jalap were two principal medicines with which the doctor had to buy for himself, and they were used in large quantities and for nearly all ailments. For the rest, the pioneer doctor had to supply himself with herbs and balsams collected by himself in the woods and fields.

Sugar-coated drugs were unknown; the nearest approach to avoidance of the disagreeable state was the use of the dough wafer, or by mixing the drug with scraped apple. Fevers and inflammatory infections were treated by covering the patient with heavy bed-clothing in a close room and allowing him almost no water. Some doctors—many of them in the early days—"bled their patients"—not figuratively. That was preliminary in most cases to whatever treatment was later to be used.

Sometimes leeches were applied, and whether the bleeding was done by leech or lancet, there was danger that the flow of blood might not stop of its own accord. In that case, the wound was seared by a hot iron. Counter-irritants were well thought of, and in addition to blistering agents, the doctors sometimes used a seton, which was the introduction of a thread into the tissues to set up an irritation. The skin was also burned for the same purpose by the use of a moxa.

It need hardly be said that not much of what would be called rational medicine was to be found in all this. But the old doctors believed in it, and their patients believed in them. The mind cure may explain how it was that many of them did recover. The pioneer doctor also had to be a dentist, but he did only extracting when a tooth was giving trouble, and his instruments were but three—a lancet to cut about the gum at the base of the tooth, forceps and turnkey, which came as near to being instruments of torture as it is possible to imagine.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Saturday, May 20.

The funeral of the late Representative William T. Smith was held at the Smith home on Blaine avenue.

Seneff, of Marion, stood fourth among the Ohio State pitchers with an average of .800. Linderbeck, Meehan, Lewis and Colligan were the only regular players of the local team batting above .300.

The county commissioners closed a contract with the Dayton workhouse for the custody of prisoners at thirty cents a day.

Marion made nine hits to six by Lancaster, but the latter team won, four to one.

Hogs were brining as high as $6.05 in Chicago; beeves as high as $6 and sheep as high as $4.85. The top price for wheat was 95½; corn, 52, and oats, 33½.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, May 20—A few steps below the Thirty-Fourth street shopping district on Broadway is the store-like office of an enterprising patent attorney. In a glittering electrically lighted window are the material manifestations of inventive dreams from all over the world.

A glaring gilt sign across the window reads "Patents Developed." Inside are rows upon rows of ponderous records and at a flat-topped desk sits the attorney who meets the constant stream of potential geniuses with their practical or impractical what-nots.

Almost every other person has an inventive idea tucked away in the folds of his mind. Indeed few are satisfied with just one. And none is so superlatively optimistic as the person athrill with the notion that he will give the world something new.

Most inventors are improvident. They have built up such roseate dreams of great wealth that the money they have on hand seems like so much chicken feed and they scatter it with the same abandon. The inventor almost invariably thinks in millions. And his life becomes a chaos of disillusionment.

When a man becomes too absorbed in an inventive idea his concentration is often looked upon with suspicion. He is regarded as one "touched." His habits of dress, his manner of living and often his conversation reveal neglectful sacrifice to a fixed idea.

Henry Ford, thin, cadaverous and hollow-eyed, was the target for indulgent smiles for years "frightening horses along the road with his fool horseless carriage nonsense." The retiring Wright brothers in their little bicycle shop in Dayton, Ohio, met the same indifference.

Chasing the inventive rainbow has brought many to a rocking chair on the side porch of the poor house. But the thin minority who win untold wealth and honors recruit the ranks. New York alone is said to have 150,000 aspiring inventors.

* * *

I had dinner recently with young Clyde Beatty, the twenty-five-year-old lion tamer of the Ringling circus, who gave New York the biggest thrill of the year. He mixes thirty lions and tigers—natural jungle enemies—in a small circular cage and with a chair bottom and a cap pistol stands off their lightning charges with a gusto of courage that literally lifts the hair.

* * *

Beatty was born and reared in Chillicothe, Ohio, and is still the type of country boy to be seen in front of the drug store. He began as a circus runaway cleaning animal cages and at twenty presented the most astounding thriller ever seen the world over. His mother saw his act but once in his home town and upon this occasion he omitted two of his most ferocious beasts. Even so she was utterly prostrated for two weeks. He is an engagingly friendly lad, the sort with a nervous smile of agreement before knowing what is said. He weighs 145 pounds, and has twice been literally torn to ribbons in the arena. He likes the movies, but spends most of his time reading in his dressing-room and wandering about the circus watching other acts. He drinks a single glass of beer now and then, but does not smoke.

* * *

Following a visit with Beatty, I was explaining to Lucy Virginia Long how alone in the pit awhirl with snarling and often screaming beasts he turned their murderous attacks into skulking whimpers. She seemed mildly interested but when I had finished naively inquired: "I wonder what a fellow like that has for delirium tremens?"

* * *

The waggish H. I. Phillips in commenting on the statement of a movie queen that had she her life to live over again she would avoid the plaudits of the public observes: "The delicatessen dealers had a word for it."

* * *

It was Phillips, too, breaking out in a rash of modernism, who suggested changing "Lover's Lane" in Central park to "Arterial Alley." And Joe Laurie, Jr., doesn't mind having insomnia if he could only get some sleep.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, May 20—On D street in the northeast section of Washington—somewhat off the more familiar parts of the capital—will be found a government agency known as the coast and geodetic survey.

The tip that James McNeill Whistler, claimed by some as the greatest of American artists, once worked there as a draftsman at something like $1.50 a day recently sent us to investigate.

Whistler's paintings are much in evidence around Washington and elsewhere. His name is known in all parts of the world. We were anxious to learn something of the days when he was just a government employe.

It was not difficult. Whistler's name is almost a by-word around the place.

There is one man—Captain E. H. Pagenhardt, chief of the division of charts—who takes great pride in Whistler's association with the survey. He seems to know all the legends that have been handed down through the years about him.

* * *

Whistler came to Washington after poor marks at West Point had forced him out. He worked a year and then went to Europe.

He was seldom on time for work, and this caused his superiors no little concern.

On his drawings of a strictly scientific nature, he was fond of inserting details of his own. In one instance, while drawing a map of an island in California, he put in a flock of gulls. The gulls were later deleted by official action.

Whistler also had a habit of sketching whatever came to his mind. Often these sketches would be found engraved on the margin of copper plates, on the walls of the building and in all sorts of places. The bare walls leading to the superintendent's office made a special appeal for him.

Caricatures of the officials of the survey often would turn up in such places.

* * *

Whistler's disregard for bureaucratic restrictions finally led to the termination of his connections with the survey. He himself later said that:

"It was not that I arrived too late in the morning, but the office opened too early."

But nevertheless his genius was appreciated. Within a few months after his arrival his name appeared as the designer of a sketch with a distinction never achieved by any other employe in such a short time.

In the Freer art gallery in Washington there is a plate known as "The Headless," containing sketches on the edges of a survey project which is regarded as "about perfect."

Many believe that Whistler's early training in the coast and geodetic survey contributed to his success.

In cases where the applicant is found deserving temporary help in the way of food and clothing is given until the family can be visited by an experienced worker, who makes a survey of the condition and advises members of the family on ways to better their own conditions.

Records of the society show that 816 families applied for help since last Dec. 6, and that 313 of these families have been helped with coal, groceries or both, as well as personal service. Clothing was given 816 families. Grocery orders issued numbered 3,019, coal orders 598, as it was necessary to help many families for a period of several weeks.

Persons applying at the office for help numbered 4,684. Six hundred and twenty-four visits to homes were made.

Mrs. Alexander is assisted by Mrs. H. L. Meyers, Miss Alice Hane, and Miss Rhea King, who have donated their time and service to the work. The society is controlled by a board of 30 members, which meets once each month.

Does Valuable Work

An analysis of the families helped by the society show a large number are headed by men with good work records and promise of reemployment. With these families, the society can do a valuable piece of work, helping them tide over period of unemployment with the least possible expense.

A complete record of all families helped and the number of grocery orders issued is kept by Mrs. Alexander. Grocers to whom the orders are issued have been instructed as to the nature of foods to be issued to persons with orders, insuring to a large extent the wise spending of this charity money.

Since the society was formed to meet an emergency situation, and only functioned for a period of five months, the budget of the society last year amounted only to $8,000. This year, an allowance fo $12,770 was designated for the society for a 12-month period.

The society has been able to function economically because rooms have been furnished rent-free by the Y. M. C. A., and because Y. M. C. A. workers have donated their time in the distribution of hundreds of articles of clothing.

O. S. U. Faculty Disapproves Optional Drill Petition in Revote.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 20—A petition signed last week by approximately 6600 students at Ohio State university asking that military training be made optional instead of compulsory, will be turned over to the board of trustees with the disapproval of the faculty written on it.

This decision was reached at a two and a half hour meeting of the faculty last night. The vote was 144 to 9. On an earlier motion, the faculty voted 131 to 64 against transmitting the petition to the trustees with approval.

By these two actions the faculty reversed its stand of last Thursday when it voted 83 to 79 to recommend to the trustees to make military training optional.
